

Missionary Gary Lupe is an Apache native, and currently serves as a pastor for two churches on the Fort Apache Indian reservation in Arizona: Shepherd of the Mountain in Cedar Creek and Gethsemane in Cibecue. Missionary Lupe has also been working with the Native America mission team to get more Apache lay people involved in mission work. Missionary Lupe graduated from the Apache Christian Training School (ACTS) in 2011 and became the first Apache pastor to be fully trained at ACTS in conjunction with the Pastoral Studies Institute.

Gary is married to Berlita Mae, who is also Apache. She is a homemaker, but she does work part-time for different departments on the reservation. God has blessed Missionary Lupe and Berlita with 6 children, two of whom were adopted.
